International Trade and Investment Prospects in Mediterranean Ports and Logistics

Barcelona, Spain | 20-22 May 2025

The 12th Mediterranean Ports and Logistics 2025 is set to unfold in the city of Barcelona. Scheduled from 20th May to 22th May 2025, the event will be hosted by the Port of Barcelona.

Set against the backdrop of Barcelona’s picturesque landscape, this event will provide an excellent networking opportunity and explore international trade and investment prospects in Mediterranean ports and European region, as regards the shipping and the transport logistics.

To address topical issues and challenges for transportation and logistics infrastructure, a two days Conference Program will feature 45 world-class conference speakers, with 400 senior government officials, executive harbour masters, port engineers, maintenance supervisors and procurement decision makers together with the region’s leading shippers, cargo owners, importers/exporters, shipping lines, logistics companies, ports, terminal operating companies, railway operators, port equipment and services providers from countries throughout the Mediterranean, Europe, Middle East and North Africa.

Moreover, in this major international maritime transport and logistics exhibition and conference for Mediterranean and Europe Region, there will be the business opportunity for a number of 40-50 exhibitors and sponsors to network directly with delegates.

A comprehensive tour of the port will be organized for all delegates with the opportunity to visit infrastrctures and logistics facilities. Currently the Port de Barcelona is a head of the mix in many fields with a rail logistics fully integrated in the Port, an ongoing project to adapt the place to modern operational necessities, strategies for the sustainability, a new OPS (cold ironing) system and the use of new generation fuels to reduce greenhouse emission with the aim to achieve port decarbonisation.
